TERRIBLE DISASTER.

Seventeen Men Buried Under a Wrecked Building.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 10.—Ten minutes after 7 o'clock this morning a large building at the northwest corner of Church and State streets fell with a crash. The side wall facing Church street had been erected this winter.

It is supposed the mortar was frozen, and that the warm weather of yesterday loosened the bricks and caused the fall. There were seventeen men at work in the building. An alarm was sounded, which brought out the fireman and police, who are working hard clearing away the debris.

The names of those found in the ruins are R. L. Worden, Wm. Ashbold, Fredrick Kohler, S. Burr, W. G. Gould, R. L. Brown, Ransom Porter, Anthony Danhillspil, and Matthew Peard.

The latter is dead and two of the others are fatally injured.

The owner of the building was on the roof at the time it fell, and was severely injured. Those who are in the basement are probably killed.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 10.—There was only one death from the falling building—that of Matthew Peard. Wm. Ashbold and R. L. Worden will die.

Jail Breaking.

FORT WORTH, April 10.—Yesterday twenty-four prisoners escaped from jail. All were recaptured excepting four.

Fatal Explosion.

BOSTON, April 10.—One building of the American Powder Company at Acton, Mass., exploded this afternoon, killing two men. The loss to property is not heavy.

Lyman Potter Killed.

SALISBURY, N. C., April 10.—Lyman Potter, who, on a wager, was attempting to roll a wheelbarrow from New York to New Orleans, was killed on a railroad near here this morning. He once walked from Albany, N. Y., to San Francisco.

Explosion in a Postoffice.

NEW YORK, April 10.—An infernal machine exploded in the Postoffice to-day. Postmaster Pearson produced the remains of the infernal machine, a pasteboard box two inches square and one inch deep, tied with a stout cord, and sealed with black wax. One end of the box was blown out by the explosion.

Murder and Robbing in Mexico.

MATAMORAS, MEX., April 10.—Yesterday, between El Colorado and Ventanillas, the bodies of three murdered men were found. One of these was a Mexican and the other two Americans. They had been killed and robbed by eight bandits. At the Fresnillo ranch, in the same jurisdiction, Lorenzo Guzman was assaulted by the same band and killed.

Hurricane in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., April 10.—Later reports of the recent tornado indicate great loss of life. The German settlement in Garland County was devastated, and three persons killed. Montgomery County suffered severely, and two citizens lost their lives by falling timber. The casualties will probably foot up ten lives, and the loss of property fifty thousand dollars.

To be Hanged.

BATON ROUGE, LA., April 10.—The Governor has ordered the execution of Bazis Dugay for the murder of George Laksley, sentenced to be hanged on January 26, 1883. He will be executed on the 11th of next May. Also John Austin, on the same date, for the murder of Isaac Brown, who was sentenced on the 26th of January, 1883. They will be hanged at Franklin.

Stabbing at Nashville.

NASHVILLE, TENN., April 10.—Dudley Porter, son of ex-Governor Porter, who dangerously stabbed James L. Grundy, the traveling salesman of Chatfield & Woods, Cincinnati, Sunday night, has been released on $5,000 bail. Grundy was resting easy this morning, and his physician thinks there is no immediate danger of his wounds, though they are quite serious. The most painful wound is one which extends across the back in the hand, severing the exterior of the two middle fingers.

CROCODILES IN FLORIDA.

Their Immense Size—Attacking a Boat—Hides and Teeth—A Ride on a Cayman.

"I shot that crocodile in Key Biscayne, Florida, last month," said a dealer in curiosities to a couple of customers.

"Alligator, you mean," said a bystander.

"No; crocodile."

"Never heard of one in Florida."

"Well," was the reply, "I won't go into the particulars of your ignorance, as you're perhaps excusable. Crocodiles in Florida certainly are a late discovery, and to-day there is not one man in a thousand that knows they can be found there."

"How is it they have never been seen?" asked one of the group of listeners.

"In the first place," said the crocodile hunter, "they ain't so common; and in the second place, when the average sporting man sees an ugly critter before him ten or fifteen feet long, he ain't apt to examine into specific differences. The first crocodile brought from Florida is in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington. Any one can see it, and there's a big difference between them and alligators. Even the Indians and 'Crackers' know the difference. They call the crocodiles 'long-nosed 'gators,' and that's just where the difference comes in. The scientific name is Crocodylus acutus, from their sharp nose. Their habits are unlike the 'gators'. These lie around up the rivers in fresh water, but the crocodiles live in the salt marshes. The way we came across them was all by accident. We'd been sponging on the reef, and it coming on to blow from the northward, we put into Key Biscayne, and lay in the lee of the key. It blew for three days, and then we went ashore for water, and put the dingy up a creek or kind of bay that set in. The place grew narrower as we pulled in, and was overgrown with bay cedars and mangroves. I was just thinking about jumping overboard to haul the dingy ashore when we ran into something. The shock knocked me over onto the bow, and before I could get up I heard a splash, and my name yelled 'Down bridge!'—he used to be skipper of a canal boat—and all hands ducked, dropping oars and everything, and the tail of a gator came over the boat and knocked out the row-locks, and would have knocked a man's head off. We lay close, I tell you. The boat half filled. The creature made three or four hits at us with its tail, and then made off. When we looked over the rail there was the biggest gator I ever saw. The boat was eight feet long, and the creature was longer than the boat. As soon as we recovered we—"

"Followed him up, eh?"

"No," replied the story teller, "we pulled for the shore in short meter. The gator got out into deep water, but the next day we came back and I had a shot at him. He got off and up the creek still further, but I put a bullet into this one I have here. As soon as we picked him up all hands noticed the difference, but most of us didn't think it was a crocodile. It was, however, and there's a heap of them right there waiting to be caught. But no more crocodiles for me; I'm satisfied with 'gators. They ain't so ugly, and there's a savage look about a crocodile that a n't pleasant. Now, a 'gator will come up, lay her eggs, and walk off, but with a crocodile it's another story. She stays right near the nest, and pays it a visit four or five times a day to see if things are going on all right. She sort of stands by to see if they play, while the sun does the hard work. When they do come out, the old one will scratch around in a clumsy way, and try to help them out, all the time making a kind of barking sound as if she was encouraging them to break through, and it does have that effect."

"I never heard of the voice of a crocodile," broke in the objectionist.

"Well, voice they have," continued the speaker. A man that lives on the Miami River told me that he heard a yelping and barking one day on the key, and thinking a pack of fox hounds had got lost he followed it up, to find it was a big she crocodile; and that's the sound they make, a kind of yelping bark. When the young come out, she gives the word and off they go after her like chickens after a hen. The young crocodiles are even fed by the old one by food disgorged. The males show a great taste for their own kin, and some big fights are seen between the male and female over the young. Anybody to see one on land wouldn't think they could get around, but that's their strong hold. They don't lie around like a 'gator, but stand erect on their legs and jump bodily, and in doing so, they crook up their backs in a curious position."

The crocodile from Florida is similar to those found in the swamps of Jamaica, and should not be confused with the cayman of Northern South America. The specimen in the National Museum at Washington is perfect, and was set up by Prof. Ward, of Rochester. The upper part is dark brown, with a yellowish white under surface; the upper parts of the legs are of deep yellowish tints, green and white. The eyes show a curious membrane analogous to that found in birds, which are not so far from the reptiles as is generally supposed. The mouth is extremely large; the teeth are sharp, those in the middle being the largest and formed for hard work. It is said that though the alligator grows with extreme rapidity, the crocodile grows at the rate of twelve inches in nine months. The cayman and gavial are relations of the above, the latter being the largest. Specimens of which have been seen in the Nile twenty-five and even thirty feet long, their long, narrow jaws containing 120 sharp teeth. The marsh crocodile of India is much dreaded, and, judging from the skull of one in the British Museum, which is nine feet long, it is safe to promise for its owner a total length of thirty-three feet. In taking food the crocodiles are much livelier than the alligators, and those of the West Indies have been seen to toss their food in the air, catching it skillfully. They rarely attack people out of water, but there is a case on record in which a priest was followed, the reptile gaining on him by taking the most surprising leaps, bending its back after the fashion of a cat, and making such good time that the bewildered clergyman, after rushing round in a circle in vain attempts to avoid it, was obliged to take to a tree, where he was watched for some time.

Waterton, the naturalist, has probably the unenviable distinction of being the only person who ever rode a cayman barebacked. In his "Wanderings" he says:

"I placed all the people at the end of the rope and ordered them to pull until the cayman appeared at the surface of the water. He plunged furiously as soon as he arrived at these upper regions, and immediately went below again upon their slackening of the rope. I saw enough not to fall in love at first sight, and now told them we would have him on shore immediately at all risks. They pulled again and out he came—Monstrum horrendum, informe. By this time he was within two yards of me. I saw he was in a state of fear and perturbation, and I instantly dropped the mast, sprang up, and leaped upon his back, turning half around as I vaulted, so that I gained my sea with my face in a right position. I immediately seized his fore-legs, and by main force twisted them on his back; thus they served me as a brace. He now seemed recovered from his surprise, and, probably fancying himself in hostile company, he lashed the sand with his long tail. I was out of reach of the strokes by being near his head, but he continued to strike and plunge, making my seat very uncomfortable. It must have been a fine sight for an unoccupied spectator. The people roared out in triumph, and were so vociferous that it was some time before they heard me tell them to pull me and my beast of burden further inland. I was apprehensive the rope might break, and then there would have been every chance of going down to the regions under the water with the cayman. The people now dragged us about forty yards on the sand; it was the first and last time I was ever on a cayman's back."

By a decree of fashion the crocodile and alligator have become familiar, and the demand for their hides exceeds the supply. Boots, shoes, bags, trunks, belts and innumerable articles are made from it. It is dyed in many tints, but the natural shade is the most desirable, assuming with age a rich chestnut tint. Not only are the hides valuable, but the teeth are made into jewelry, and it is a common sight to see, awaiting the Northern express at Baldwin, Fla., a youth with shirt studs, neck-tie pin, sleeve-buttons and cane head of crocodile teeth, while his grip-sack is perhaps from the same unfortunate reptile. Certain African tribes also affect the teeth, only they are worn in the nose and around the neck.—N. Y. Sun.

A horse's head ought to be as free as his feet, except that the head must be used as the guiding part. It would be just as sensible to tie and brace up his tail when he is to be backed as to fasten his head when he is going forward. A horse of any spirit always holds his head where it ought to be when he is in motion.—Indianapolis Journal.

Pickled Peaches: Take six pounds of sugar to one quart of good cider vinegar, boil the peaches in this (after rubbing off the fur, or peeling them, as you prefer) until a broom splint will easily pierce the skin; stick some cloves into the peaches before putting them into the vinegar, and scatter a handful of stick cinnamon over them.—Chicago Journal.

Cracked wheat makes a very nice dish if baked with plenty of water added from time to time as it is needed, to allow the wheat to expand. It should be baked slowly for from five to six hours, and it then will be found to be remarkably sweet and wholesome. It is delicious if baked with milk instead of water, but will then need more attention when in the oven, to prevent scorching.

Frightful Scalp Diseases Transmitted in False Hair.

A terrible alarm has been created amongst the ladies by the announcement of a visitation of the most dreadful kind—nothing less than the arrival of the horrible disease of the hair known as the plica polonica, which has hitherto been confined to the inhabitants of Poland and the frontiers of Russia. No medical science has been able as yet to ascertain the exact cause of the disease, which renders its victim a most hideous object to behold, transferring sometimes almost suddenly the most beautiful and luxuriant crop of hair into a matted, disgusting mass of twisted snake-like ropes, which stand out in horrible convulsions all over the head, through which no comb can ever be drawn, and which can never be cut owing to the agglomeration of the roots into one united mass, which, as the roots are filled with blood, would cause the sufferer to bleed to death were they to be violently removed.

The doctors here account for the appearance of the disease, in two cases which have appeared of late, to the recent importation of false hair from Poland—a country hitherto forbidden to trade in the article of false hair. It appears that the hair-dressing season having been rather unsuccess in the usual districts to which the trade has been till now confined, in consequence of the immense demand made upon the peasant girls of the country for the last two or three years through the tremendous plait, and "chignons," and "cascades" and "tails" and "rizzes" that have been worn, heavy enough on the single head of a lady of fashion to despoil the poor pates of half a dozen poor potato weathers or lace-makers of the Normandy villages, it has become necessary to widen the fields of operations, and after ransacking Constantinople, Smyrna and Damascus, the yield has even then fallen short of the demand.

The traders, after a run into Germany, have been compelled to make a swoop down upon Poland, in spite of the point of honor by which they were bound to avoid all dealings of the kind with that country. A lot of the most beautiful hair was imported thence from a great fair held in the environs of Warsaw toward the end of the month. Most of the hair was of the finest and most silky quality—highly polished, clean, and evidently well cared for by its former proprietor; but as most of it was black it had to be dyed to suit the fashion of the day, which commands that every woman that man delighteth to honor shall have flaxen, red-gold, or orange-colored hair. But nothing is easier to the hair trade than to change the color, and by the chemical mixture manufactured for the purpose this object is attained in a moment.

However, one of these individuals, residing in Clerkenwell, who had purchased a bag of Polish hair of the finest quality, was horrified on perceiving the lipid in which he had plunged it for dyeing turn gradually of a blood-red color, until the whole mass had changed to the same lurid tint. Chemists were called in to ascertain the cause of the strange occurrence. The mixture was submitted to analysis, but nothing was discovered, until at length the doctors were summoned, and a test examination by the microscope, the bulb of the plica polonica was detected in a great proportion of hair which had been bought by one especial trader who had attended the fair. It was but the germ of the disease, but the tube of the hair was affected, and had it remained upon the wearer's head would in a short time have been developed into the most virulent form of the disease.

Other dealers have kept their discovery secret, and have sold the hair at a cheap rate to inferior hairdressers. Much of it must have been used to ornament the heads of the humble aspirants to fashion and distinction, who wait behind the bars of the lower public houses, or behind the counters of the general shops of the East End. It is certain that two cases of the disease have been reported—one of them a very young girl employed as nurse in a tradesman's family, whose head had been lately shaved after an attack of scarlet fever, and who had bought a "fringe" to render herself "less shocking" beneath her cap. The doctors are, of course, busily occupied in the investigation of the germs, and undertake to prevent the spread of the disease. They remember the failure experienced by the French and English medical faculties in their endeavors to cure the singer Madame Cruvelli, who was compelled to leave the stage and retire from the world, in the midst of a career as brilliant as that of her sister, in consequence of this terrible visitation.—Liverpool (Eng.) Courier.

Highly intelligent darling: "The robbers can't steal my mamma's earrings, 'cause papa's hidden them." Interested lady visitor: "Is that so, dear? Why, where has he put them, I wonder?" "I heard him say he's put them up the spout, and expects they will stay there."—N. Y. Tribune.

Make the Grass Available.

It is well now to realize the fact that the grass season is half gone, and that very much of the success in carrying stock through the coming winter in good condition, and economically, will depend upon what is gained by them during the next twelve weeks. This has an especial application to animals that are thin in flesh. Such as are thin on the first of August, having had good pasture since the opening of spring, will hardly go into winter in good fix without extra attention. The term extra attention, of course, in this case, means extra food added to the rations of grass.

If the grass does not promise to meet the requirement—and every stock man of experience can make a fairly correct estimate in this regard—recourse should be had to regular rations of extra foods, given with regularity at evening, or in the morning and evening, the latter being the best, where convenient. There can be no gain made that will equal that made upon grass and grain combined. All the conditions are favorable to this: (1.) The bodily condition is favorable, the secretions are acting freely, being under conditions that preclude any material liability to a congested or torpid state of any secretory organ; and (2), as a natural consequence, the excretory functions—the outflowings from the bowels, kidneys and skin—are in a like healthy and favorable state.

On farms so arranged that the stock can be divided, allotments being made to different pastures, it is wise to hold a pasture lot in reserve, giving it a few weeks rest during the middle of the season; then, as it is made apparent which animals are likely to lag behind in the matter of taking on flesh, they should be separated from the others and placed in the reserved pasture lot. This division will answer the double purpose of giving the thin animals access to the best grass, at the same time placing them more easily under control, and separated as they are from the others, it is more convenient to deal out special rations of food. The pasture lot for such a purpose should be upon rolling land, if there is such, for the well-known reason that the grass on such land is more nutritious, and has a flavor more acceptable to stock than the coarse and rank-growing grass of low lands. It is also easy, when stock is so divided, to give them other attentions not possible to be dealt out if they remain in one lot. In this connection may be named, an occasional, or even daily ration of newly cut up corn; or, if the grass is abundant, half a dozen or so ears of new corn in the ear, at noon time, not omitting the usual ration of ground feed at the customary hour for giving this. So also a little extra observance in the matter of salting may be indulged in with advantage.

Furthermore, in taking visitors to see stock outside of the stables, the unpleasant duty of showing animals it is desirable not to have seen, will be avoided. Perhaps there is nothing that so detracts from the appearance of a herd as to have a portion of the animals comprising it in this condition. Uniformity is one of the most attractive features in any herd. In fact, if the herd is a good one, no other quality takes rank with this. On the same principle that the retail merchant assort his goods, placing the most attractive pieces in the show window and upon the more prominent shelves, the breeder is warranted in making the division referred to. When he goes out to meet company, or when he receives company at home, he is expected to replace his threadbare, faded coat, with one in every way presentable. So the thin and faded stock may be also excused from receiving visitors till, through the plans of management referred to, the bare or bony places are covered, and the color freshened.—National Live Stock Journal.

Crab Apple Jelly: Cover the apples with water and let them boil till perfectly soft. Pour off the water and strain through a flannel or towel. Put the juice on the fire and boil ten or fifteen minutes. Measure a pint of sugar to a pint of juice, put the sugar in pans in the oven and when perfectly hot add to the juice and boil five or ten minutes longer. For marmalade: Rub the apples through the sieve, and put about one-half pound of sugar to a pound of fruit, cook slowly some time. Three or four lemons improves it.—Prairie Farmer.

It is highly important that a horse-stable should be well ventilated, whether it be in a basement or not. Horses often acquire serious diseases of the eyes and lungs from breathing foul air in unventilated stables. It is neither humane nor profitable to expose them to such dangers.—N. Y. Examiner.

Agriculture is the financial barometer of the United States.—London Telegraph.

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, as she was walking on the beach one day, was asked if she were not afraid of the terrific storm then raging. She replied: "No; I prefer the voice of God to that of the summer boarder."

A GRANITE monument, for which the last Congress appropriated $10,000, is to be erected at Charlottesville, Va., over the remains of Thomas Jefferson. It is to be twelve feet at the base, eighteen feet high and will be constructed of stone obtained at a quarry near Richmond.

In an address at the ceremony of decorating the graves of the Confederate dead in New Orleans, Jefferson Davis said that Albert Sidney Johnston was the strong pillar of the Confederacy, and that Lee, Jackson and Johnston would compare with the leaders of antique or modern times.

MANUFACTURERS and dealers in tobacco, snuff and cigars who make claims for rebate of tax on the stock that may be on hand May 1st 1883, will be required, when taking an invoice of the stock on hand on that day, to affix a label to each stamped package of tobacco or snuff of one pound or more in weight; to each box containing stamped packages of tobacco or snuff less than one pound in weight; to each stamped package of cigars, and to each box containing stamped packages of cigars.

SAYS the Harrodsburg (Pa.) Patriot: The working classes are beginning to understand the flagrant imposture practiced in their name and under the pretense of advancing their interests. They have learned in the school of experience that they are not protected against the competition of foreign laborers by high duties on the products of their labor. The "Window-Glass Workers' Association of the United States," for instance, is preparing a bill to be introduced in the next Congress prohibiting the importation of working men into this country under contract to work for certain wages for a given length of time.

The proposition of the Window-Glass Workers is based precisely on the same principle as that of a high protective tariff. It is intended to shut out foreign competition. The only difference between the tariff and a law prohibiting the importation of wage-workers under contract is that the former is meant to enrich the employer and the latter to protect domestic labor. If, therefore, the protectionists are sincere in their much vaunted purposes of protecting American labor they will hasten to support this proposed tariff on the muscle, brawn and brain of other countries.

The Grain Market.

The Philadelphia Press says: India has already lowered the price of grain in the world's market and cut off from 10 to 20 per cent. at least, of the profits of the Western farmer. Wheat sells in the interior for eighteen cents a bushel, about one-third to one-fourth the cost of raising it in Dakota, and high freight charges to the sea-coast are all that prevent this grain from hopelessly underselling ours, as water carriage is only six or eight cents a bushel more from Calcutta to New York. As India has 20,000,000 acres on which wheat is grown—a surface one-half as large as that now sowed down in this country—yielding 24,000,000 bushels, and as much more which can be put under the plow, all the needs of England can be supplied by her. All that is needed is English capital to build railroads. It is not surprising, under these circumstances, that a government loan of $250,000,000 for this purpose is strongly urged in India and England as the simplest and most direct way of making England independent of any other power for its food supply. Such a change would work as sudden changes in our domestic agriculture as the development of steam and machinery in England did in our domestic manufactures forty years ago.

A Strange, Strong Letter.

Covington Commonwealth.
[The following letter was evidently written by a father to a son of dissipated habits.]

"My dear son: What would you think of yourself if you should come to our bedside every night, and wakening us, tell us that you would not allow us to sleep any more? That is just what you are doing; and that is just why I am up here a little after midnight writing to you. Your mother is nearly worn out with turning from side to side, and with sighing because you won't let her sleep. That mother, who nursed you in your infancy, toiled for you in your childhood, and looked with pride and joy upon you as you were growing up to manhood, as she counted on the comfort and support you would give her in her declining years.

"We read of a most barbarous manner in which one of the Oriental nations punishes some of its criminals. It is by cutting the flesh from the body in small pieces—slowly cutting off the limbs, beginning with the fingers and toes, one joint at a time, till the wretched victim dies. That is just what you are doing, you are killing your mother by inches. You have planted many of the white hairs that are appearing so thickly in her head before the time. Your cruel hand is drawing the lines of sorrow on her dear face, making her look prematurely old. You might as well stick your knife into her body every time you come near her, for your conduct is stabbing her to the heart. You might as well bring her coffin and force her into it, for you are pressing her towards it with very rapid steps.

Would you tread on her body if prostrated on the floor? And yet with ungrateful foot you are treading on her heart and crushing out its life and joy—no, I needn't say "joy," for that is a word we have long ceased to use, because you have taken it away from us. Of course we have to meet our friends with smiles, but they little know of the bitterness within. You have taken all the roses out of your sister's pathway and scattered thorns instead and from the pain they inflict scalding tears are often coursing down her cheeks. Thus you are blighting her life as well as ours.

And what can you promise yourself for the future? Look at the miserable, bloated, ragged wretches, whom you meet every day on the streets, and see in them an exact picture of what you are fast coming to, and will be in a few years. Then in the end a drunkard's grave and a drunkard's doom! For the Bible says, "No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God." Where, then, will you be? If not in the kingdom of God you must be somewhere else.

Will not these considerations induce you to quit at once, and for all time, and may God help you, for He can and He will, if you earnestly ask Him? Your affectionate, but sorrow stricken father.

For and About Women.

Vermont has two women acting as mail carriers.

Cincinnati boasts that there is a young lady in that city with a full beard.

It is pleasant to read something to Mrs. Langtry's credit. She gave $5 to a hungry woman in a Rochester railroad station.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, of Iowa, is delivering temperance lectures in Florida, where the prohibition movement, in the shape of local option, is gaining amazingly.

A four-year-old fragment of humanity strayed into the kitchen washing day and then went up stairs and asked her mamma what Bridget was "cooking the clothes" for.

Mrs. Mary Ann Turrentine, a twin sister of Senator Hill's mother, is still living, aged about eighty-five. Her home is in Harris, Ga. She gave the Senator the name of her first husband, Benjamin Harvey.

The women in the departments at Washington mostly belong to the low salaried classes, but many of them, whose efficiency has been demonstrated by long service, except that the Civil Service Commission will give them chances for promotion, which they have never hitherto enjoyed.

The Empress of Russia never wears any fur but sable; the Empress of Austria-Hungary confines herself to astrakhan; her daughter-in-law, Prince Rudolph's wife, will have nothing but otter; the Queen of Holland wears only marten, the Queen of Roumania, chinchilla, and the Queen of Spain, beaver. Seal-skin appears to be scorned of royalty.

One recent morning Kate Slocum, a pretty Florida girl, stood at the door of her father's house watching sun just peeping above the tree tops. Paddy, the gardener, came whistling along the road at that moment, and as he was passing a cloud for a moment obscured the orb of day. "Sure," said Pat, with a bow and a smile as he lifted his hat, "when the sun bevant caught sight of your eyes he was ashamed and hid himself away." Did any gallant ever say a prettier thing?

THE DAILY BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY EVE., APRIL 11, 1883.

Now jury-men the boys will ask
To tell 'em so and so,
And wide they'll stretch their eyes to hear
How little that they know.
Exactly where the tiger works,
His daily bread to earn,
Is something that the jury-men
Can't sometimes always learn.

Speaking.

Hon. Proctor Knott, candidate for Governor, will address the citizens of Maysville and Mason county at the Court House on Friday, April 13, 1883, at one o'clock p. m. The ladies are specially invited.

THE DAILY BULLETIN will be sent postage paid to any address at the rate of $3 a year.

THE work of putting up a pressed brick front to Mayor January's residence on Front street began to-day.

EPHRAIM BUNTIN, a well-to-do citizen of citizen of Carlisle committed suicide on Monday by hanging himself.

THE case of Ellis Craft, the Ashland murderer, is to be considered by the Court of Appeals on the 16th of May.

THE warehouses at the Kentucky Planing Mill are receiving new roofs. They have been repainted and present a very neat appearance.

MR. SHAFER's pleasure garden at the pump house has been planted with evergreens. It is one of the most attractive spots in East Maysville.

HAUCKE's Reed and Brass Band was out last night to serenade Miss Jessie Gillespie, of Pittsburg, who is visiting friends in Maysville. They furnished most delightful music.

An effort was made yesterday to lift Levi Kain off the rock pile by means of a writ of habeas corpus, but it failed of the desired end. When Jimmie Redmond puts 'em there they generally stay.

MESSRS. MORRISON & KACKLEY have lately received some very elegant styles of stationery, which will certainly please their lady customers. It is of very fine quality and novel in design. Call and see the stock.

THE Owens cottages on Myall avenue are receiving a coat of paint. They are neat buildings and have been rented to a very respectable class of tenants. It would be better for Maysville if more houses of this kind were built.

THE physicians who are attending Mr. Thomas M. Allen, who was injured recently by the accident on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad, have given up all hopes of his recovery. His death is likely to occur at any moment.

MR. L. B. ARMSTRONG, proprietor of the celebrated Armstrong elastic paint, has gone to Ripley and other towns in that vicinity to answer calls for his services. The paint is widely and satisfactorily used in this neighborhood.

MR. J. H. PECOR has bought of Mr. H. J. Powell a house and lot on Limestone, street adjoining the residence of Mr. M. C. Russell, for $3,500. The sale was made through an advertisement that appeared in the DAILY BULLETIN yesterday.

THE Bower Bridge Company, of Maysville, are putting up a substantial covered bridge of sixty feet span over Boone Creek, near Little Rock, in Bourbon county. The bridge was framed here and shipped to its destination. The recent washing away of one of the abutments will delay the completion of the work.

NIGHT policeman Charles Dawson who was charged by Patrick Fay with representing himself as office Browning and retaining $10 which he alleged had demanded as security for his appearance for drunkenness was examined before the Mayor on Tuesday afternoon, and as there was no evidence to substantiate the charge the case was dismissed.

A DISPATCH from Charleston, West Va., says:

Since the murder of the Gibbons children at Ashland, Ky., it has been maintained by Eureka detectives heretofore that two negroes are guilty of the murder. One and the other has been followed up until the detectives have located one negro. Strong affidavits have been secured in this city pointing directly to a negro who is still at large. His whereabouts are known, and next week he will be arrested and brought to this city. The rumor that he was in our jail is false. Affidavits have been sent to Neal and Craig, counsel at Cincinnati, Ky., which started the report that the negro had made a confession in jail.

PERSONALS.

Hon. J. Proctor Knott is in the city. Major Thomas A. Ross and family, are visiting friends at Covington.

Mrs. Dr. Allan, of Tilton, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Stine, of East Maysville.

The marriage of Miss Sarah E. Taylor to Mr. Robert Baldwin, will be solemnized at Murphysville to-morrow.

Messrs M. F. Marsh and C. L. Sallee, who have been at Falmouth for several days on legal business, returned yesterday.

Mr. Charles Hancock, one of our most correct and reliable young men, is now filling a position in the House of Owens & Barkley.

We find the following among the Newport items of the Cincinnati New:

C. L. Sallee, esq., a prominent lawyer of Maysville, Ky., was in the city yesterday visiting his cousin, Colonel R. W. Nelson.

Mr. John Duley, late of the First National Bank, and one of the most correct and careful accountants in the city, is now occupying a desk at the State National Bank.

Mrs. Bettie Varian was brought to Maysville yesterday in a carriage from Winchester, O. She endured the trip without unusual fatigue and is much better to-day.

THE first indictments returned by a grand jury in Mason county, were returned at a Court of Quarter Sessions, held on the 27th day of September, 1792, at the house of Daniel Peck, at Washington, by Thomas Waring and Robert Rankins, "Gentleman Justices." The record as made at that time is as follows:

The inquest sworn yesterday, this day brought in the following presentments and indictments, to-wit: an indictment against John Young for feloniously stealing a bay mare and colt of Mrs. McIntyre, a true bill. They also presented John Smith for profane swearing four oaths. They also presented John Smith for drunkenness. They also presented Jacob Boone, overseer of the highway, for not repairing the same. Also John Young for swearing four profane oaths, also John Williams for drunkenness, also John Whaley for drunkenness, also Adam Flocker for drunkenness, also Thomas Burke for retailing spirituous liquors without a license, also Stephen Treace tavern keeper for suffering gaming in his tavern, and he ordered that they be summoned to appear at the next court to answer the same and having nothing further to present they are discharged.

Sales of Land.

The following changes in the ownership of land have been recorded at the office of the Clerk of the County Court, since our last report:

Harold J. Powell and wife to J. Henry Pecor, house and lot on the west side of Limestone streets above Third; consideration $3,500.

Mary A. Galbreath to Celestine Dillon and others, life estate an undivided one-fourth interest in 142 acres of land; consideration $165.

John T. Wilson als, by commissioner to James Williams, 30 acres, 3 roots and 24 poles of land on Flat Fork; consideration $1,575.

R. C. Cooper to David E. Cooper, the undivided one-seventh interest in 100 acres of land on Phillips Creek; consideration $350 &c.

John Tragar to M. F. Mitchell, lot No. 73 in Dover; consideration $250.

Francis T. Hord and wife to L. C. Natas lot of ground near Maysville; consideration $50.

Julia A. Hunt.

The "Pearl of Savoy," in which Miss Julia A. Hunt will appear at the Opera House this evening, is an exceedingly interesting play, and with this distinguished actress in the title role, will certainly insure a crowded house. Those who desire to be pleasantly entertained will not fail to be present.

COUNTY POINTS.

TWO LICK.

Cattle are in great demand and large prices are offered.
Wheat is beginning to look better.
The pike is progressing slowly on account of the bad weather.
Farmers are greatly behind with their spring work.
Tobacco sales: Mr. Charles Williams at eleven cents. Mr. Joseph Hinson at sixteen cents, flyings thrown in.
Elder Tiller preaches here next Saturday and Sunday. This terminates his pastorate for the year. Efforts will be made to retain him another year.
Mr. George Insko, of the Bridgeville neighborhood, died April 3, 1883. He left many friends to mourn his departure.

Mr. J. W. Woodward, who had a tumor removed from his neck recently by Drs. Corlis, Dimmitt and Browning, is getting along finely.

HOMO.

HELENA.

Small grain prospect is poor.
Mr. W. B. Rollins who has been quite poorly for several months, we are glad to say is improving.
Some of the tobacco buyers are skipping around quite lively.

A little son of Henry Kirkland, cut his foot very badly, with an ax Friday.

Mr. P. A. Liler has purchased an improved farm, near Paris, Bourbon county. He will move thither September 1st.

Some of our citizens take more than the usual interest in court this week.

The old blacksmith shop has been pulled down. It was built about the year 1763.

On Friday morning, Fleming Creek, is said to have been three feet higher than was ever known. Much damage done.

Mr. L. T. Thomas bought of Mr. G. B. Morgan, forty-five acres of land, at $100 per acre. Our farmers are making preparations for planting a large acreage of tobacco.

Little Millcreek got on a boom Friday morning and did some damage.

STONE LICK.

The hardest rain of the past long season last Thursday night, doing much damage. On the waters of Cabin Creek it washed off several barns, stables, corncribs and even parts of several dwellings. Fortunately no lives were lost. Mr. J. H. Bean's yard was filled with big rocks.

Millford, Bracken county, claims (and we think justly) to have more prettiness than any other place double its size in the State.

Mr. Hub Ridgely and Miss Hattie Key, one of our handsomest belles, were visiting Mrs. Wallingford last week.

The regular meeting of the church at Mt. Gilead will be held next Saturday and Sunday.

Circuit Court having commenced a good many of our best citizens are on the jury.

Lewis Robinson sold his tobacco for $10 per hundred from the ground up.

Elmer J. H. Wallingford filled his appointments in Boone county, Saturday and Sunday last.

There will be a three days meeting held at Mt. Gilead, beginning on Friday before the Sabbath in May. Elder's Lesser, of Virginia, Jones, of Bath county, and perhaps others, are expected to attend. This meeting is being held in accordance with a long established custom.

Wm. Darnell killed thirteen large snakes in one pile last week. He thinks there is a snake den close and they had just come out to see the sun after the long winter.

Mrs. Darnell lost a valuable horse last week, it being the last one, having lost the other previously. The neighbors are taking steps towards making her a present of one as a token of respect.

A strange enigma: A landlord claiming damages from a tenant because mules eat up part of the fencing and the farm fall a short two acres by survey after the tenant had left.

WASHINGTON.

Wm. R. Gill and wife have gone on a visit to his wife's father, Mr. Geo. Hayden, of Missouri.

Mr. Nick Winn, of Winchester, Ky., has been on a visit to his brother at Silver Lake place.

Dr. Guerrant, the evangelist, will, it is supposed, preach in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday, the 15th. Everybody is invited.

R. Taylor of the firm of Taylor & Bros., has gone to Cincinnati to buy a spring stock of goods.

Mr. Wm. Durratt has commenced to build a new barn, stable and crib on the ground of the burnt distric.

FEIN LEAF.

Quite a number of crops of tobacco have been sent in the neighborhood lately at prices ranging from 25.00 to 32 per cent.

Mr. Matt Evans returned to his home near Dover, on Thursday, after a visit to the family of G. V. Evans.

Mrs. Eliza Owens gave a birthday dinner last week, her children and grand children being the only invited guests.

The Misses Bramble, daughters of Wm. Bramble, of the vicinity of Lewisburg, have been the guests of Miss Amelia McIntyre during the past week.

We have learned that one of our items published in the BULLETIN has offended a gentleman who writes us to say, for we meant no offense. Whenever we are the least personal we only intend it as a jest and hope that the little amusement it may give, will be accepted in the same spirit in which it is offered.

Miss Laura Evans, of the vicinity of Dover, came up last Wednesday for the purpose of attending the Fern Leaf school.

We are glad to say that the pupils of our school are very regular in their attendance, and are improving rapidly, and we can compliment the whole school as being one of the most pleasant that we have ever taught.

Many thanks to the unknown donor who was so kind as to send us a nice box of oranges by express last week.

We attended a select party at Mr. B. F. McIntyre's on last Friday evening, which was a very pleasant social event, there being fine pianists present who gave us some excellent music, and then we had some interesting games, and last, but not least, the refreshments served were simply elegant.

There was considerable excitement in our town one day last week, caused by an altercation between two young men about a spring wagon. One threw a hatchet and the other fired three shots from a revolver, but fortunately no one was hurt.

P. E. M.

HALL'S Hair Renewer renews, cleanses, brightens, and invigorates the hair, and restores faded or gray hair to its youthful color and lustre. People with gray hair prefer to use the Renewer, rather than proclaim to the world through their bleached locks that they are becoming aged, and passing on to decay.

By 1 lek of open air exercise, and the want of sufficient care in the matter of diet, the whole physical mechanism often becomes impaired during the winter. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the proper remedy to take in the spring of the year to purify the blood, invigorate the system, excite the liver to action, and restore the healthy tone and vigor.

Bird-like, she's up at day-dawn's blush,
Her veins with healthful blood flush.
Her breath of life, her cheek a rose;
In eyes—the kindest eyes on earth—
Are sparks of a homely mirth;
Dewdrops, arch humor is ambrosia;
The dear curves of her dimpled chin,
And guileless creature, hale and good,
And faint of wholesome womanhood,
Far from the world's unhallowed strife,
God's blessing on the Farmer's Wife!

I love to mark her matron charms,
Her fearless steps through household ways,
Her sunlit hands and buxom arms,
Her waist, unbowed by toiling days;
Beneath a busy care,
She's here, she's there, she's everywhere;
Long ere the clock has struck for noon
Home circles of toil are all in tune,
And from each richly-tinted hour
She drains its use as bees a flower,
A part from passion's pain and strife,
Peace gently glides the Farmer's Wife.

H. mowar! this daily labors done!
The stalwart farmer slowly plods,
From battling, between shade and sun,
With soil in globe and stubborn sods;
Her wide eyes on his side, I have I
Is sure she's flashing on a cloud!
All vanishes the brief eclipse!
Back to the sound of welled lips,
And words of tender warmth that start
From out the husband's great-fell heart!
O, well he knows how vain his life,
Unsweetened by the Farmer's Wife!

But lo! the height of pure delight
Comes with the evening's staidness joys,
When by the heart's own spaces bright
Blend the glad tones of girls and boys;
Their voices rise in gleeful swells,
Their laughter rings like elfin bells,
With a look 'twixt smile and frown
The mother lays her infant down,
And at her firm, uplifted hand,
There's silence 'mid the joyful band;
Her signal stills her harmless strife—
Love crown's with law the Farmer's Wife!

Ye dames in proud palatial halls—
Of lavish wines and jeweled dress,
On whom, perchance, no infant calls
(For barren of your loveliness)
Turn hitherward those languid eyes,
And for a moment's space be wise;
Your sister 'mid the country dew
Is three times nearer Heaven than you,
And where the plains of Elysium set,
Dream not that ye shall stand by her,
Tho' in your false, bewildering life,
Your folly scorned the Farmer's Wife.

—Paul Hamilton Haynes.

Wanted a Job.

Yesterday a man came into the Boomerang office with the air of a man who is tired of this earth and wants to wing his way to a land of forgetfulness and plunge into the lethargic depths of oblivion. After he had taken a seat on the tete-a-tete and hung his hat on the escutcheon, he said:

"I'm a newspaper man myself. Didn't know but you might want a good man on the staff, somebody to write up the salient features of life and furnish the tearful wail, as it were. Life is full of woe, and in my estimation every paper should have a woe editor. I am well fitted for that position, as you will see if I may be allowed to go on and detail my own experience to you.

"I went down into Kansas and started a paper in a small town on the Santa Fe Road, with the assurance that I would meet with the cordial aid and sympathy of the people there. I didn't expect to do a big business, but I just wanted to run a little modest sheet. The first week my paper didn't get there, and I had to print that issue on some paper bags that I got from our leading grocer. This was an advantage, because his ad. was already printed on the first page and it saved the wear and tear of display type. Still the paper looked meager and did not attract the attention that I had hoped for. It did not influence the Administration nor boom up the town as I had anticipated.

"The next week I wrote up a little social party and gave the name of a young man who was drunk and frolicsome and shot out all the lights. He also shot an old man who was 'calling out' the dance.

"I thought the press ought to be fearless and outspoken if the occasion required, and I wrote it up carefully and, as I thought, fairly, but the young man came around the next day and convinced me that I was wrong. I was writing as cathartic article on agnosticism when he came in and knocked me under the job-press with a chair. I didn't know him at all and thought it was rather eccentric for a total stranger, so when I got up again I told him so. Then he jammed me into the wood-box and poured a keg of ink and a can of coal oil on me before I could have any understanding with him.

"Then he went away.
"That evening he came with some friends and bought the good-will of the establishment, and the whole office and subscription list of me. He had the address of me, and bought it low. I felt that I was making a sacrifice, but I was afraid I might not have another opportunity to sell, so I sold. The price, of course, was nominal, but the inducements held out were not to be ignored.

"Since then I have started three papers, and had three large and hotly-contested fights. My collar-bone has been broken in two places, and my doctor's bills have always been bigger than the other expenses of the office. The dentist has been pulling teeth out of my palate ever since I entered into the newspaper business. As soon as I got so I could see with both eyes one of them has been closed up on me, and my nose has at different times pointed around all over my face.

"What I want now is a chance to work on some paper in co., as I might say, and where I will be by myself. I can take most any current event and tinge it with sadness. I can give an air of hopeless melancholy to the occurrences of everyday life that will make your paper known all over the world. I will admit that this is an innovation in journalism, perhaps, but it will take, I think, and I know that if I can succeed in imbuing into my work that etched air of gloom that I feel, your paper will win for itself in a short time the name of being the most ghastly record of disappointment and grief-stricken, horror-soaked remorse in the known world."

The manager sobbed a few times and then said, while his voice was choked with emotion, that the oaque gloom department was ably filled at present; and the stranger went out into the cold, hard, unsympathizing outer world, taking with him his lean burden of woe and a silk umbrella that stood in the hall.—Nye's Loomerang.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—Madam Ristori, the famous tragedienne, is nearly sixty years old.

—A gentleman living near Buffalo, N. Y., has two daughters, one of whom was born in Montana and the other in Idaho. In remembrance of his sojourn in the Western wilds he has named them after the two Territories.

—The female correspondents who make Washington their fruitful field of operations have organized a Press Club and will endeavor to have galleries in the Senate and House set apart for their special use.—Chicago Herald.

—Preston Powers, the son of Hiram Powers, the great sculptor, has completed the cast for a marble bust of Garfield. It has been pronounced perfect by the wife and mother of the dead President. The bust will be sent pater in home.

—Luus Hatch says: "I was one of a corps of engineers that did the first day's work that was ever done on a railroad in Wisconsin. I held on to the hand end of the chain and stopped it at the 100-foot mark. That is the way I commenced engineering."

—The story of Mrs. Lincoln writing, when a young girl, a letter in which she expressed the determination to become the wife of a President, is confirmed by the production of the document, now in the possession of General Preston, of Lexington, Ky. It was addressed to a daughter of Governor Wickliffe, and contained a playful description of the gawky young Lincoln, to whom she was betrothed. She said: "But I mean to make him President of the United States all the same. You will see that, as I always told you, I will be the President's wife."—N. Y. Sun.

—The late Bishop Scott was strongly attached to outdoor sports. In early youth he was forced by poverty to fish for a living, and to the latest years of his long life he retained a fondness which he frequently indulged for the hook and line and net. He was expert at the tiller and at the oars, and was also a crack shot with a bowling piece or rifle. After he had risen to the highest honors of the church, he often took delight in roaming through the fields and woods, and sailing on the streams or the bay, accompanied by his grandsons and other boys of the neighborhood, who found him a genial comrade and an apt instructor in the sportsman's arts.—Chicago Times.

—Senator Vance, of North Carolina, frequently illustrates his speeches with anecdotes, or, rather, parables, which he relates in a manner that seldom fails to bring down the house, no matter how much the majority may disagree with him politically. Speaking not long ago against a bill which he considered "penny wise and pound foolish," he said it reminded him of a kind old man who lived at the top of a hill in North Carolina. One day a wagoner came by, and, unluckily, got his team "stalled" at the foot of the hill. To the old man's house he went, asking the loan of a pair of mules and a "fifth chain" to help him up the hill. Said the kind old man: "My friend, I have not a pair of mules or a fifth chain to save your life. But I am always anxious to help a man in distress; I can lend you the best fiddle you ever drew a bow across."—Chicago Times.

A Lake Captain's Yarn.

Captain Bennett, proprietor of the river steamers, is a man acknowledged to carry a pretty level head, and is not given to illusions or eccentricities of any sort. Yesterday, while at the wheel of the steamer City of Rochester, on the lake, he claims to have seen a sea serpent, one hundred yards ahead of the boat, and off a line drawn from Dr. Moore's cottage on the bluff. The neck and body seemed to be about six inches in diameter, and the reptile rose up out of the water, showing its body to the length of ten or twelve feet. The head was large. The color was that of an eel, and when it sank in the water, after being in view for an instant, it did so with a splash, making the water boil for six feet on each side. Captain Bennett told what he saw to an old Lake Ontario navigator, and he advised him not to repeat the story, or he would be laughed at and told he had the tremens, or something of that sort; if he did, as he (the navigator) was, a short time since, when he told he had seen the serpent. Captain Bennett is not a man who drinks, and he knows just what he saw, and that it was a sea serpent.—Rochester (N. Y.) Post-Express.

—A New York State man who tried a flying-machine of his own invention recently had no advice to give to those who crowded around. All he said was: "Work in 'durned fool' somewhere on my tombstone!"

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.
"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rochester, N. Y., July 15, 1882.

Croup. — A Mother's Tribute.
"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
Mrs. EMMA GEDNEY."
150 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effective remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried."
A. J. CRANE,
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."
JOSEPH WALDEN,
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing it to do what but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles."
E. BRAGDON,
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.
